Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

Hill damage in most plants just about covered up now. New growth spurred by the sun has done a good camouflage job.

Plants took a beating, the like of which, they have never received before. We don't know what kind of sentence construction that is, but it comes out all right.

We have a candidate for that beer commercial where nothing excites the fellow sitting at the table, including beautiful girls hovering over him, folks coming in in space ships etc., except a particular brand of beer. You've seen this one. Well anyway our candidate is the fellow who plays the role of the sergeant in Combat. On the rare occasions when he smiles, we are afraid that his face will crack.

You just naturally feel compassion for this guy. He epitomizes, the end of the rope, the last time, the final effort, the last chance, and if this does not work we're dead.

Cricket in the house last night. His chirping seemed to come from everywhere. Finally found him right against the front door, sawing away. He must have been scraping his wings together.

There is another cricket that will not come in the house and he is called a Mole Cricket. It has front feet like a mole, used like appendages which are spade for digging.

Day Lilies blooming all over town. Smoke trees blooming. Camellias in bloom. Folks with Magnolias have big white blooms. Our Tulip Poplar is doing ok.

May Pops are large and green and Acorns are forming. Our Wild Grape vine is all leafed out and it runs up on an Ash tree.

The tree in the yard of the Bank of Murray Drive-In bank is a beauty. We have no idea what it is.

Everything comes to him who knows WHERE to wait.

We heard that the army now plans to let a fellow's Social Security number be his army serial number.

This is a good idea. We think the Social Security number should be used for as many numbers as possible, since we apparently will always have it with us.

Rather than have a different number for everything, if the Social Security number is used, a fellow would have fewer numbers to keep up with.

"My, but your wife certainly is a magnetic woman", Fred exclaimed to Bob at a cocktail party. "She ought to be", Bob said. "Everything she's wearing is charged".

J. Edgar Hoover in his monthly newsletter says "Police officials, as well as the general public, are becoming weary of persons who, for self-aggrandizement and monetary gain, exploit noble causes and agitate peaceful groups into rioting mobs. Some so-called leaders seem to 'blow hot and cold with the same breath'. Their premonitions are beginning to have a hollow ring. They claim to support nonviolence, but do they? For instance to publicly pinpoint certain cities where riots and violence may occur seems to be inconsistent with the doctrine of nonviolence."

Hoover goes on to say, "rather, it is more like an open invitation to hooligans and rabble rousers in those areas to move into action on cue. It puts them on notice that they are expected to riot. Where is the reason and judgment in this type of leadership?"

Mr. Hoover ends by saying that (Continued on Page Six)

Forty Vehicle Accidents In City In May

Forty vehicle collisions occurred in the city limits of Murray during the month of May, according to the reports filed by the investigating officers of the Murray Police Department. No fatalities were recorded, but several persons were injured.

A one car accident occurred Wednesday at 6:31 p.m. as Joe B. Larrister, 507 South 9th Street, driving a 1961 DeSoto two door sedan, ran off the road into a left pole breaking the pole into 10th and Poplar Streets, according to Patrolman Dale Spann.

Earlier at 5:40 p.m. a two car accident happened on Highway 121 North at Dodson Avenue. Delbert Pay Newsome, Covey Drive, driving a 1968 Chevrolet four door sedan, was approaching from the rear, could not stop on the wet pavement after he saw the Lowe car stopping, according to Patrolman Dale Spann.

Damage to the Lowe car was on the left rear fender and to the Newsome car on the front end, according to the police report.

A two car collision occurred Wednesday at 11:56 a.m. at 9th and Poplar Streets. Rudy Smith, 131 North 12th Street, driving a 1961 Chevrolet two door, pulled out of 9th Street and hit the 1964 Chevrolet two door, driven by Anthony Jerome Jones, 706 Chestnut Street, as he was going east on Poplar Street, according to Sgt. Barney Weeks.

Damage was reported on the left rear fender of the Jones car, as shown on the Police report. Three persons were cited by the Police on Wednesday. They were for public drunkenness, driving while intoxicated, and reckless driving, according to the department records.

Young People May Learn Spanish Free At MSU Institute

If you are in grades 7-12 and are interested in learning to speak Spanish, contact Dr. Parr at Murray State University (Ext. 3819; Home - 793-8706). The university is host this summer to an NDEA Institute to up-date the knowledge and skills of 54 secondary school teachers of Spanish from all parts of the U.S.

As a part of their training, these teachers observe a demonstration class in Spanish, made up of students in grades 7-12, taught by an outstanding teacher, Sid Guillen of Louisville, Kentucky. Mr. Guillen, a native of Cuba, has taught demonstration classes in NDEA Institutes at Michigan State, Howard, Vanderbilt, and Murray State (1966), among others.

Dr. Parr, director of the Institute and chairman of the large usage department at MSU, would like to have 15 more students who could attend approximately 1/2 hour each day from June 15-July 27, excluding July 4. A text and records will be furnished at no cost. There is no tuition.

Jolly Green Giants Make Ocean Crossing

PARIS (UPI) — Two U.S. Air Force helicopters landed before a cheering crowd at Le Bourget Airfield today after a nonstop trip from New York. The first direct helicopter flight ever made across the Atlantic.

The trip took 29 hours and 48 minutes. They landed at 7:35 a.m. EDT.

The Sikorsky HH-60 "Jolly Green Giant" helicopters flew the same course Charles A. Lindbergh used 40 years ago when he made a solo voyage in the "Spirit of St. Louis".

The helicopters carried crews of five men each from the 48th Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron of Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

The trip, stole the show at the Paris International Air Exposition when the two "copters" landed opposite the U.S. pavilion at Le Bourget field.

The choppers are one of America's most important aircraft in the Vietnam war. Flying out of Thailand, the "Jolly Green Giants" are used in rescuing downed pilots in North Vietnam.

Baby Lee Fund Tops $1,000; More Needed

The fund for little Bonnie Sue Lee topped $1,000 today. The money is being contributed by thoughtful people who wish for little Bonnie Sue a happy and useful life.

Bonnie Sue who is ten months old and the daughter of Mrs. Jennie Lee, was born with a heart defect which needs to be corrected at once.

Thus far contributors have boosted the fund to $979.00 and Mrs. Harold McReynolds treasurer of the fund, indicated that she has about $77.00 which has not been placed in the bank as yet.

No limit has been set on the amount of money to be raised, since it is not known just how much will be needed.

This immediate project of flying the mother and child to Mayo Clinic and providing food and housing for the mother must be met first. The operation itself will be done free of charge by Mayo surgeons.

It is understood, that since Bonnie Sue is only 10 months old, that corrective surgery will be done to insure normal development, then at a later date, still more surgery will be done.

Whatever funds are not used in this primary project, will be set aside for her further care and treatment. The possibility exists also that Mayo doctors will want to see the child again in about two weeks or a month after the operation.

It is for these reasons, members of the committee indicated, that no ceiling is being placed on the fund.

Calloway County people have rallied to the aid of Bonnie Sue with individuals, firms and organizations working to boost the fund.

Anyone who plans to make a contribution to the fund is urged to do so as soon as possible since the campaign will be brought to a close soon. Contributors are asked to make their contributions by Saturday if possible.

A group of Woodmen of Men Girls collected $31.50. This group was composed of Debbie Cuthy, Lana Wood, Jill Street, and Sandra Hughes. A check for $50.00 was received from Paris, Tennessee from Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Williams.

Other groups have made collections and people have volunteered to set up collection points.

Indications are that the Bonnie Sue Lee fund is going over well, and proves once again that Calloway County people have big hearts.

Hazel Teacher Named For NDEA Institute

Miss Margaret K. Winchester of Hazel, and Sister Marie A. Rague, Fancy Farm, have been selected by Lincoln Memorial University as two of the 36 teachers to participate in the NDEA Institute in Reading which is to be held on the LMU campus at Harrogate, Tennessee, June 7-August 1.

This Institute is administered by the U.S. Office of Education as authorized under Title XI of the National Defense Education Act.

Miss Margaret Winchester teaches 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8th grades in the Calloway County System. Sister Marie Rague teaches 1 and 2nd grades at Fancy Farm, Public School Fancy Farm.

They were selected on the basis of their having the required academic and professional background, the ability to benefit from the program, and the capacity to develop professionally.

The major purpose of the NDEA Reading Institute is to help elementary classroom teachers to become better teachers of reading. The institute's staff will include outstanding educators, college professors and public school teachers from Tennessee, Kentucky, and North Carolina.

Not included in this figure is the amount that was spent by local residents in restaurants and in other eating and drinking places.

If the total food tab were divided equally among all local families, it would come to $1,286 per family for the year.

In other sections of the United States, less than this was spent for food, an average of $1,214 per family. In the State of Kentucky it was $1,208.

Strong consumer buying was also in evidence in other local stores, the report shows.

He said Americans are quick to point a critical finger at the government and the war on poverty for failing to assume the responsibility of this fight — "a fight we as individuals should personally assume."

He added that "the average Christian today has no twinge of conscience which he passes the buck man by the road. He rationalizes that he has paid the Good Samaritan to come along after him to take care of this rather unpleasant social obligation."

Wednesday, Convention President H. Franklin Paschall said he does not envision the day when Southern Baptists would merge with other churches, not even with other Baptists and evangelicals.

But the Nashville, Tenn., minister said Baptists are becoming involved in a "crisis of spirit" with other Christians at local levels.

Just one hour after the convention defeated a motion to abolish the Christian Life Commission, commission director Foy Valentine said the opposition was aimed at the CLC's stand on race relations.

He said there is "a strong steam of guilt among Southern Baptists" for not accepting Negroes into their churches. "Thank God there are evidences of progress as we move away from culture in the South and towards Christianity."

Paschall said Baptists are making progress in applying Christian teaching to nondiscrimination, and pledged the progress would continue.

Paschall was elected Wednesday for a second year as head of the nation's largest Protestant denomination, composed of 11 million members.

PROPER INVESTIGATION

A CONTROVERSY has arisen in Viet Nam over the M-16 rifle, now in general use by American troops.

As with most controversies, there are conflicting stories and a three man Congressional team will leave for the war zone on June 2 to carry out an eight-day investigation.

Some reports are that the M-16 is a superior weapon, feared by the Viet Cong. Others are more disturbing and say that many Americans are dying because the M-16 jams at a critical time.

One soldier said that when his unit was almost wiped out, dead Americans should be made and if any corrections are in order, they should be implemented at once.

American soldiers should be as well equipped as modern technology will allow.

American parents suffer when their children are involved in any war, anywhere, but at least they will feel better to know that their sons are well equipped with guns that can be depended on . . . every time.

"The sale of lottery tickets by our federally insured banks for a cut of the profits . . . is a great boost to the gambling interests and opens the door to eventual domination or outright takeover of these banks by banking syndicates."

WASHINGTON — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, criticizing some civil rights leaders, who have warned of possible summer violence in specific cities:

"It is like an open invitation to hotheads and rabble rousers in these areas to move into action on cue. It puts them on notice that they are expected to riot."

HONG KONG — Hong Kong's administration's determination to keep order in the riot-torn Crown Colony:

Veterans Questions & Answers

Q — I converted my National Service Life Insurance term policy to a Modified Life Plan shortly after this new plan was made available. I was assured that since my term policy participated in an annual dividend distribution, that my Modified Life policy would also be "participating." When will I receive a dividend?

A — Perhaps never. It is true that a Modified Life Policy converted from a participating term policy is also "participating." Dividends are distributed from reserves that have accumulated in an amount necessary to pay claims. Premium rates for the Modified Life plan are scaled so low that no excess reserve has accumulated as yet. Experience thus far indicates that there may never be a reserve on Modified Life plans large enough to justify a dividend distribution.

Q — I have been attending a vocational school under the new G. I. Bill. This Fall I plan to enter the University of Wisconsin. What steps should I take to insure that my educational allowance will be paid promptly after I make this change?

A — It will be necessary that you apply for a supplemental certificate of eligibility. This is done by completing VA Form 21E-1995, "Request for Change of Program or School." This form is generally available at the school, or may be obtained at any VA office. This certificate of eligibility must be submitted to the school before or at the time of enrollment, since it is used by the school to certify your enrollment to the Veterans Administration.

Q — I have just been discharged from the Army. I served four years, part of it in Viet-Nam. Can I get a G. I. home loan and go to school under the new G. I. Bill at the same time?

A — Yes. There is no bar to participating in each of these benefit programs at the same time.

Q — May a veteran who is receiving compensation from the VA arrange to pay a policy loan on his National Service Life Insurance out of this monthly benefit?

A — Yes. This is a most convenient and relatively painless way to accomplish this repayment. It is necessary that you authorize the Veterans Administration to make this deduction and to credit your policy loan account.

Foyt Wins '68 To See Many Turbine Autos

By ED SAINSBURY

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The gold and the glory of this year's 500-mile auto race went to winner A. J. Foyt and his piston-driven Ford but the speedway future clearly belonged to an experimental turbine machine that finished sixth.

Wednesday's race was barely over when drivers and veteran Indy buffs were betting that next year's entries would contain as many as 15 cars like the one Parnelli Jones drove to within 10 miles of victory. Jones gobbled up almost all of the cash lap prizes, setting a silent, sizzling pace for 173 of the race's 200 laps. A broken gearbox which forced him out after 460 miles cleared the way for Foyt to thread his way through the wreckage of a three-car crash-up to victory.

Gold and Glory

All that glittered was not one of the many speed records set—there was more gold too. The Speedway said Wednesday night the unofficial purse of $777,346 was $30,000 higher than last year's previous record.

The awards—not official until the final standings of the race were posted Thursday—gave Foyt $171,227.

Second place Al Unser received $69,977; Joe Leonard got $43,527 for third; Denis Hulme, the "rookie of the year," got $28,377 for fourth; Jim McWhorter got $22,957 for fifth, and Jones got $48,362 for sixth, $27,000 of it in lap prize money.

This is supposed to be a proving ground for automobiles and not for airplane engines," Foyt said of Parnelli's car. But when he talked of next year's race, he said, "Wouldn't want to come back here with anything that's not competitive."

Turbines in Future

The turbine got another vote from Graham Hill, the 1966 winner who went out Wednesday after 23 laps. Hill said he would enter the 1968 race in a turbine-powered machine.

Foyt was the only driver besides Jones to set the pace. He did it for 27 laps, and he was ready to take over when Parnelli went out. At the finish, Chuck Hulse, Bobby Grim and Carl Williams tangled in a three-car smashup. Foyt came almost to a stop behind the spinning cars, then threaded through to take the checkered flag as the yellow caution flag came out—and then almost instantly hit red flag to stop the race.

Foyt was the only driver to finish 200 laps, 500 miles, and he did it at record speed, 151.204 miles per hour.

Two Day Race

It was a strange race. It started on Tuesday and went 18 laps with Jones in front before rain brought the chase to a halt and left the field to wait another day.

They restarted in single file behind Jones Wednesday and they tried to catch him. Only Foyt was in a position to succeed.

Hoyt Wilhelm Celebrates Another Birthday; Oldest In NL

By SAM GOLDAPER
UPI Sports Writer

Hoyt Wilhelm celebrated his 40th birthday almost four years ago with the stunning announcement that he still might be pitching at the age of 50.

You had better believe the old knuckleballer, the oldest active player in the major leagues.

The ancient Chicago White Sox fireman proved Wednesday night that he is still worth his pay check by pitching 2 1/3 innings of hitless relief ball as the Sox edged the Baltimore Orioles, 3-2, in 11 innings.

The Chicago victory coupled with Cleveland's 9-0 victory over the American League pacesetter Detroit Tigers, moved the White Sox to within a half game of tying for the league lead.

Elsewhere around the American League, the Yankees whipped the Kansas City Athletics, 3-0; Washington defeated the California Angels, 6-3 and the Boston Red Sox edged the Minnesota Twins, 2-1.

In the National League, Houston defeated the New Mets, 6-1; the San Francisco Giants blasted Pittsburgh, 15-4; the Chicago Cubs edged the pacesetter Cincinnati Reds, 6-5; Philadelphia ripped Los Angeles 6-0 in 11 innings and the Atlanta at St. Louis game was postponed because of rain.

Wilhelm appeared as fresh as the unbridled youngster who came up with the New York Giants in 1952 and appeared in 71 games. He struck out three batters, including Frank and Brooks Robinson back-to-back and failed to allow the other four batters to hit the ball out of the infield.

Best All Season

"That was the best my knuckler has been working all season," said Wilhelm, who scored his 101st relief victory.

Wilhelm's mark is even more fantastic when you figure that he has appeared in 825 games during his 17-year major league career and won only 118 games.

"Not only was my knuckler working well," added Wilhelm, who had allowed only one earned run in 17 innings of pitching, "but I was able to get it over the plate. I guess I'm working on my second hundred victories now."

White Sox manager Eddie Stanky juggled his pitchers, using four to help pull his Sox out of a three-game losing streak.

Big Game

"I'm happy to see us break that losing streak," said the fiery White Sox manager. "It was a big game for us. We're back in contention for first place."

"Hoyt's pitching was the best I've seen him pitch all year," added Stanky. "When I called him in, I told him it was his game to win or lose. I told him to tell me when he thought he should come out. That's why I let him bat for himself in the bottom of the 10th inning."

Louis Tiant of the Cleveland Indians, who says he pitches best in cold weather it was 50 degrees and windy in Detroit set the Tigers down with six hits. He struck out 13, high by an Indian pitcher this year.

The Indians blasted five Tiger pitchers for 16 hits, including three each by Rocky Colavito and Larry Brown plus Leon Wagner's seventh homer.

Wine First Start

Thad Tillotson, rushed into a starting assignment by the Yankees after Whitey Ford's retirement, made his first start a winning one as he set Kansas City down with five hits in the 8 1/3 innings he worked. The Yankees, who are fast becoming the hitless wonders, collected only four hits, two by Steve Whitaker, including a two-run homer.

The Boston Red Sox got two homers from Carl Yastrzemski, his ninth and 10th of the season, but still needed Mike Ryan to squeeze in George Scott with the deciding run. Boston starter Darrell Brandon chalked up his second victory in seven decisions when reliever John Wyatt choked off a Minnesota Twin rally.

Ken McMullen and Cap Peterson hit third-inning homers to account for five of the six Washington runs. They were all pitcher Joe Coleman needed to even his record at 3-3.

TOP PRICES

PARIS ST — Two oils by painter Claude Monet brought the highest price in a million dollar auction of 100 French paintings and sculptures Tuesday.

A French collector paid $190,000 for "La Seine a Argenteuil" and "Les Bords de la Seine" went for $71,000.

Nye Pitches Cubs To Win Over Reds

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

Rich Nye never pointed the ranks of the protesters at Berkeley but the National League hitters are bound to be picking him soon.

Nye, a civil engineering graduate of the Berkeley campus of the University of California, pitched and battered the Chicago Cubs to a 6-5 victory Wednesday night over the league-leading Cincinnati Reds.

"I couldn't grow a beard if I wanted to," the 22-year-old left-hander smiled. "I shave but you can't tell, anyway all those wildos you hear about out there on the campus are a small minority."

Nye went the first eight innings, allowing six hits and five runs and also contributed a double and two singles to the 13-hit Chicago attack that tripped up the Reds. Cal Koonce came on in the ninth to save the victory that ended Nye's record at 3-3.

Good Student

Nye posted an excellent 2.2 grade average while gaining his civil engineering degree and he will study in the off-season for his masters. In high school in Walnut Creek, Calif., he was salutatorian of his class.

"I guess the only way to mix baseball with my college degree is to build stadiums," Nye laughed.

Cincinnati manager Dave Bristol was more impressed with his baseball than his grade average.

"He mixes up his pitches well and makes his fastball look better, he looks like he's going to be a good pitcher," Bristol said.

Nye acted like a hitter, too, although his best average came in his junior year at California when he was a part-time infielder and batted just .280.

Nye's double and a single by Glenn Beckert gave Chicago a 1-0 lead in the third and Nye singled home a second run in the sixth after the Reds had tied it 1-1 in the fourth. The Cubs made it 3-1 in the seventh and then exploded for three runs off Bob Lee in the eighth with Ron Santo's bases-loaded single scoring the last two runs.

Intrigue-suspense at its best HOUSE OF CARDS by STANLEY ELLIN

From the Random House novel. Copyright © 1967 by Stanley Ellin. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED? Rene Davis, an ex-pugilist and would-be writer, hired a house in a disreputable Paris. The first night there a dark-haired woman, a stranger to him, who wanted to make a phone call, and things began happening. While the "writer" Max Marchant, pressed Davis' employer and his landlord's approach to him about Davis' wife, they went to Marchant's bedroom and they discovered Marchant had been dead for a month.

Next a certain Claude de Gonde offered Davis a job as tutor and arranged a meeting. It developed that Claude was to be Paul de Villemont, son of Anne de Villemont, the woman who had helped at the disreputable. He also worked with a Colonel de Villemont and his wife, Madame de Villemont, de Gonde's private secretary.

CHAPTER 6 PAUL DE VILLEMONT sat on his bed furiously gnawing his fingernails and staring at the wide-eyed as his mother explained my duties. Fridays were my time off, and Sundays Paul was delivered to his grandmother on De Saint-Cyr and left in her charge part of the day, but every other morning of the week was to be devoted to school at Saint-Cyr and if I needed others they would be ordered immediately.

Madame de Villemont said, "Paul is an American and some day will be attending an American school. He must be prepared for that."

Paul's face became dully resentful. "I am not an American," he protested. "Grandmother says I am not. She says some day I'll go to school at Saint-Cyr to learn to be a soldier like Papa and Grandpa."

I saw Madame de Villemont stiffen. "Enough," she said. "But it's true," Paul assured me. "That's what Grandmother says. My father was a colonel in the paratroops and my grandfather was General de Villemont, a very great general. And my father died in action. That is the right way for a soldier of France to die."

Madame de Villemont said, "You know I don't want you to talk about these things."

"Grandmother does," Paul said cunningly. "And you told me to listen and be polite when she does. You told me—"

"Now I'm telling you you're a child and don't understand these things," Madame de Villemont took hold of herself with an effort. She turned to me inquiringly. "Do you know how to play baseball?"

"Yes."

"Good. I had a ball and glove sent from New York, and I'd like Paul to learn how to use them. They must be somewhere around here."

She looked distractedly around the room, which was littered with toys and games and construction sets as well as stacks of books and magazines most in ragged and well-read condition.

The ball and glove proved to be under a pile of toys in a large chest. Paul finally dug them out with the air of doing everyone a great favor.

"Very well," said Madame de Villemont. "Now on nice afternoons, you're to go with Monsieur Reno and learn how to catch and throw. If you wish, you can take your football, too. You will practice playing ball with Monsieur Reno and do exactly as he says so that you'll become as big and strong as he is."

"Yes, Mama," said Paul, and if I had been in his shoes I would probably have sounded just as weary.

"And," Madame de Villemont said to me, "when the weather doesn't permit being outdoors, you'll take Paul to whatever museum or gallery you think worthwhile. Your room is right through here," she said, leading me into it.

Before she could get a word out there was an explosive crash against the door, then another—the sound of a small body being hurled wildly against it.

The child's voice rose to a determined shrieking. The battering at the door continued. A foot drummed against it so that it looked as if the panel were going to be splintered.

Madame de Villemont turned the key and threw open the door.

His mother said helplessly, "please, please, listen to me." Book went flying as he clawed them off the shelves.

Madame de Villemont, her face agnized, stood rooted there.

I brought the flat of my hand hard against the seat of his pants.

Hands pressed to his seat, he retreated from me, step by dazed step, until he was brought up short by the bookcase. He stood there staring at me as if unable to believe what had happened.

Paul finally found his voice. "You hit me."

"I spanked you."

"It's the same thing."

I shook my head solemnly. "No, one only hits a dangerous man. One spanks a troublesome puppy."

"I'm not a puppy!"

"If you behave like one, you are one."

Paul turned to his mother. "Of course I'm not really like that," he assured her. "Am I?" he asked uncertainly.

"Not really," Madame de Villemont shrugged apologetically. "But just now—"

"Because you locked the door," he charged. "You went with him and left me alone."

Before she could answer, I said, "There are times when people want to talk in private. You and I will have times like that. When we do, would you want someone hanging away at the door?"

Paul grudgingly shook his head. "But what will you and I talk about in private?" he asked suspiciously. "Only lessons."

"We will have a lot to talk about besides lessons. Men's affairs. Things that don't really concern women."

He considered this soberly. "Yes, of course. Men's affairs."

"Now, your mother and I must talk in private. Meanwhile—I looked around at the havoc in the room—"you might try to do something about this mess."

Before he could respond, I ushered the startled Madame de Villemont into my room, and not trying to justify the sound at all, twisted the key in the lock.

She said, "You're never to allow Paul to have anything to do with strangers. Certainly, you're never to put him in someone else's charge. Paul may be in danger, and you—"

"Danger?" I said in bewilderment. "Danger from what?"

"From kidnappers!"

"What makes you think so?"

"That doesn't matter. All that matters is to see he's protected from them."

She quickly crossed the room to the massive chest in its far corner and pulled out the bottom drawer.

She knelt down and groped inside the chest, finally coming up with a small, cloth-wrapped bundle. She unrolled the wrapping feverishly, and there in her hand I saw a beautifully designed pistol. Its muzzle aimed squarely at my chest.

"Here, take it," she commanded, and I promptly did so.

She watched me thrust the gun into my belt. "You'll have to get bullets for it. Do you know where to?"

"I think so."

"Good. You can hide it behind that dresser when you're not carrying it." She watched me replace the drawer, and then said abruptly, "I want you to move in here as soon as possible. Today, if you can."
